

Let's Talk: Supporting Your Child's Gender and Sexual Orientation

Oak Park OWL is joining with New Moms and Pillars Community Health to offer a sexuality education series aimed at parents and caregivers of kids 0-14.

Public conversation and education about sex and gender identity are still new for many of us, and it can be challenging to address these topics with children.

You will learn about how to support your children as they grow into their own unique gender expression and sexual orientation.
